Rent-to-own to turn tenants into owners

A new rent-to-own program that's launching in Vancouver aims to help tenants get a toe in their own door, and help them stash away the cash needed to purchase a home. Bosa Equity will credit a portion of each month's rent for program participants living at their properties to go towards a fund they can ultimately use to buy one of the company's new homes. When the renter's tenancy is up, they will receive a statement with how much Bosa Equity they have amassed, and the tenant will have 24 months to purchase a new Bosa property.
